Learning to read and write successfully takes practice. Therefore, it is important to use a variety of approaches and activities that will keep students interested. It is also important to assess students' progress and to ask yourself whether you are meeting their needs. This section of the Teachers' Pack explores these ideas as it.

SRA/McGraw-Hill's Reading Laboratory program was created in 1950 by Don H. Parker,

Ph.D., who developed the idea while teaching in a rural Florida classroom. Faced with the challenge of reaching different levels of learners, Parker devised a method of breaking reading selections into color-coded levels. Students.
